

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XX.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1892.

NO. 30

LANCASTER, GARRARD COUNTY.

—Rev. C. M. Reid will preach at the Baptist church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

—The Juvenile entertainment, given at the College chapel Tuesday evening, was largely attended. It proved very enjoyable and their teacher, Miss Hattie Marra, deserves great praise.

—Cavins Boner, son of John C. Boner, died at his home in Marksbury Wednesday morning at 1 o'clock. He was a bright and handsome boy and had been a great sufferer for many months. The funeral services were held at the Fork church, Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, and the remains interred in the Fork cemetery.

—It would be well if there could be a constitutional amendment extending the presidential term to six years, and rendering the incumbent ineligible thereafter. The constantly recurring elections keep the country in a constant state of excitement; business is deranged; men go wild over the scramble for office and millions of dollars are expended for political purposes. Not only so, but in the whirlpool of excitement attending conventions, the Sabbath is notoriously desecrated and men, ordinarily disposed to be prudent, lose their heads and act as though their prudence had given way to their passions and prejudices.

—The Christian church was beautifully decorated with ferns and flowers, Wednesday morning, when our four charming graduates read in a pleasing manner their splendid essays. The programme was as follows:

PRAYER
MUSIC
Piano Duets, "Gazza ladra," Rossini
Miss May Hughes, Prof. Koetter.
Essay—"To Live in Hearts we Leave Behind, is not to Die."
Miss Bessie Davis, Hebron, Ky.
Essay—"I Lift Mine Eyes and what I See, a World Happy and Fair."
Miss Bessie White, Alexandria, Ky.

MUSIC
Vocal Trio, "The Holiday," Concone Essay—"Sculptors of Life are We."
Miss Jennie Perkins, Marksbury, Ky.
Essay—"Let Us Cull the Roses Within our Reach."
Miss Ollie Marra, Danville, Ky.
Address—"To the Class."
Eld. J. C. Frank.

Conferring Degrees, Believing Deploration.
President J. C. Gordon.

RECEPTION.

—Mrs. Fred Lippold, of Louisville, is visiting Mrs. Blanche Sweeney. Miss Della Hughes has returned from Marksbury. Mr. Tom Bush, of Denver, Col., is visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. N. Bush. Miss Bernice Bangham is visiting Miss Jennie Arnold. Mr. Louis Walker, of Richmond College, has returned home. Misses Bessie Davis and Mary Rice, accompanied by Messrs. Bob Embury and Owen Stevens, visited Hustonville this week. Willie Woodcock, Jack Dillehay and Harry Whitthorne, of Danville, attended the commencement exercises Wednesday morning. Mrs. Hattie Woldridge and daughter, Mary, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Reid, on Richmond avenue. Mrs. R. L. Grinnan has returned to Cynthiana, accompanied by her two nieces, Misses Lillie Chairs and Eugenia Bush.

—Hon. William Fessenden Vilas, of Wisconsin, who has been mentioned in connection with the nomination for the presidency by the democratic convention at Chicago, will be 52 years of age July 3, 1892. He was secretary of the interior under Mr. Cleveland and if Mr. Cleveland should not receive the nomination, it is quite likely that his strength will be thrown to Col. Vilas. He is now a U. S. Senator and stands high in that body. As a speaker, he ranks among the ablest in the Nation and his character is as pure as his patriotism has been conspicuous. Col. Vilas served under Gen. W. J. Landrum as captain of the 23d Wisconsin in the Army of the Tennessee and also a lieutenant colonel of that famous regiment. He was noted for his modesty, prompt attention to duty and gallantry upon the field. At the battle of Sabine Cross Roads in Louisiana he served on the staff of Gen. Landrum and was specially mentioned in his report in the most complimentary terms. At a reunion of the Army of the Tennessee at Chicago he carried off the honors of the evening in a magnificent address, in which he had as contestants Robert G. Ingersoll, Stewart L. Woodford and others. He is a handsome, well preserved man and would fill any position he might accept with credit to himself and honor to the Nation.

—Mrs. Rogers, living near Winfield, W. Va., while sitting by the bedside of her husband, who was supposed to be dying with consumption, was struck by lightning and killed. The husband was unhurt.

The following item, clipped from the Ft. Madison, Iowa, Democrat, contains information well worth remembering: "Mr. John Roth, of this city, who met with an accident a few days ago, spraining and bruising his leg and arm quite severely, was cured by one so-called bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. This remedy is quite an equal for sprains and bruises and should have a place in every household. For sale by Dr. M. L. Bourne, Druggist and Optician, Stanford, Ky."

DANVILLE.

—Maggie, W. G. Proctor's little daughter, whose illness has been noted, was thought to be better at noon to day.

—The marriage of Miss Annie Baughman, of Lincoln county, and Mr. Monte Fox, of Danville, is announced for the 15th inst.

—Ex Gov. "Bob" Taylor, of Tennessee, is advertised for a lecture here Thursday evening. Subject, "The Fiddle and the Bow."

—Judge McFerran finally dismissed, Tuesday, the charge of knifing Mike Cullen, preferred against Lee Vanarsdall and Charles King.

—Mr. Nath Woodcock and family have moved from the Gilcher House and now have rooms with Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dunn, on Main street.

—At the Hogsett Academy declamatory contest Thursday night, the medal was awarded to John Gaines Moss, son of Mr. Ray Moss, of this county.

—Mr. W. P. Scott, in the employ of Hackney & Scott, Thursday morning fell from Wallace's new house, on the Shakerstown pike, and was painfully hurt about the head.

—Mr. Henry Read, wife and child, of Fort Smith, Ark., are among the commencement visitors. Mr. Read graduated here in 1883. He is a nephew of Mr. J. Boyle Read, of this county.

—Mrs. R. J. Breckinridge entertained a large number of young people Wednesday night at the home of Mr. Boyle Read, in honor of Miss Lizzie Read, the only graduate from Morrison Academy this year.

—Prof. L. Eddy informs the I. J. that since last week all the telephone troubles have been settled, that all the discontinued offices will be re-established and that private persons can make the same arrangements as heretofore.

—Dr. M. M. Leech, veterinary surgeon, has bought D. P. Rowland's residence on Main street for $2,300. He will put up a horse infirmary on the portion of the lot which fronts on Pine street. Mr. Rowland has bought from Mr. Meisil a lot on Harrodsburg avenue and will soon build a dwelling thereon.

—Startling rumors are afloat that the colored troops of Danville are going to "boyceout" every white individual who "signed the separate coach bill." It is generally supposed that no man's signature was necessary to make the bill a law except that of Gov. John Young Brown. However, the c. t. e. may have information on the subject that other people have not.

—The city council met Wednesday night and proceeded to "persecute" poor people some more by passing an iron clad dog law to take effect July 1. All dogs of all ages, sexes and previous conditions of servitude, are to be killed unless they appear on the streets properly labeled. If the council would only reflect, they would realize that a good supply of dogs is half the living of poor people.

—The 10th annual commencement exercises of Centre College began Sunday morning with the baccalaureate sermon by Rev. J. M. Worrall, D. D. His text was from Luke 12:42. His argument went to show our accountability according to our opportunities. In the evening Dr. Hamilton, of Warren Memorial church, Louisville, preached a sermon to the Young Men's Christian Association, connected with the College. Monday night the oratorical contest was decided by Mr. Thomas McWilliams receiving the first and Mr. J. H. Swango the second prize. Tuesday night Hon. Boyd Winchester, of Louisville, of the class of 1880, addressed the alumni at the Second Presbyterian church. Tuesday, beginning at 10 A. M., the class day exercises were held in the College chapel. The historian was E. L. Van Winkle, gifforian F. B. Douglass, reply to gifforian J. Hawkins Johns; poet, J. Ray Honey; grammar, C. M. Fackler; prophet, J. R. Curry; orator, H. L. Godsey. Tuesday night, after the Winchester address, the "Phi" society gave an elegant banquet prepared by the ladies of the First Presbyterian church, at the Clemens House. Dr. Worrall presided and toasts were responded to by Judge Thomas Phister, of Mayville; Mr. Dwight Marble, of Louisville; Mr. Frank Kinney, of Central University; Mr. F. T. Swope, of Louisville; and Rev. C. B. H. Martin, D. D., of Danville. Wednesday beginning at 10 A. M.

The final exercises were held at the Second Presbyterian church and according to the following programme: Music, prayer, music, Oration, "Never give up," Eugene Wilbur Cook; music; disquisition, Shall we distrust? Henry Livingston Godsey; music; dissertation, The desire of all nations, Edward Virgil Spicer; music; oration, What we owe to Columbus, John Elmer Turner; music; valedictory, William Jennings Price; music; conferring of degrees; music; benediction; music.

Tewmeyer, Perryville; Miss Belle Kaufman, Nicholasville; Mr. John Brewer, Harrodsburg; Miss Mary Prather, Perryville; Mr. Geo. Bottoms, Miss Nannie Dugan, Perryville; Mr. Nell West, Perryville; Miss Angelina Young, Lexington.

MIDDLEBURG, CASEY COUNTY.

—J. W. Boyd & Co. are putting up a saw mill on the C. & G. railroad at a point formerly known as Staffordville.

—The colored band of McKinney passed through town Saturday on their way to Yosemite to play for a darkey entertainment there.

—E. B. Sweeney and J. W. Brown have submitted their claims as candidates for circuit clerk to the democratic committee for settlement.

—Mrs. Sally B. Daugherty, wife of William Daugherty, died at her home two miles north of here Saturday. A husband and two children, one of which is only about four weeks old, survive her.

—Prof. N. W. Hughes, one of Lincoln county's most popular teachers, has been employed to teach at Yosemite this year. Nathan is well up with the times as a teacher and we congratulate the trustees of the Yosemite school in securing so excellent an instructor.

—John Lawhorn and Thomas J. Foley had an altercation Friday on the pike below Yosemite, in which Foley came out second best. He had been having some talk, not very complimentary to Lawhorn, and on meeting Friday, the latter took him to task for it, with the above result.

—Juno Wash Institute closed its first session Thursday, June 24. That it has been a success was clearly evinced by the examination, of which the patrons speak in the highest praise. Rev. J. N. Backlog, the superintendent, was highly pleased and is very hopeful and has no fears for the future of the school. He deserves success for his untiring efforts in establishing the school and placing it upon a sure footing. Prof. J. N. Hall, J. A. Allen and R. H. Brown will doubtless be retained next session, as a better faculty could not be secured, nor one that would give better satisfaction.

LIBERTY, CASEY COUNTY.

—Though there was a meeting appointed for members of the First Kentucky to do business in regard to history matter, yet it was postponed, as not enough came together to do business, and there was nothing of much importance to do, only to report progress, and it was thought best to defer the meeting till a more suitable time.

—Notwithstanding everybody's crops are in the weeds, a good crowd was here Monday at the opening of circuit court. So far but a few cases have been tried and they are unimportant misdemeanor ones. There are liable to be no important murder cases on hands, unless a reported case of poisoning comes up. Judge Morrow and Commonwealth's Attorney Herndon look as jovial as usual. Among the distinguished lawyers from a distance we notice R. C. Warren, of Stanford; Bryant Stone and the great land lawyer, J. E. Hays, of Jamestown, and the one known here as "Jack the Ripper" Tartar, of Rolla.

—The authorities are looking this evening for the arrival in custody of the of law, Joe Gillispie, or Glizy, from the Fishing Creek country, charged with poisoning Belle Crockett. Her daughter, Maggie Hayden, is also said to be implicated. It is said that circumstances are strong against the man, but not so confirmed against the woman. It is reported that she was sick and taking quinine, and after taking a dose she was taken with spasms and soon died. It is supposed that strychnine was secretly substituted for the quinine. It is also rumored that he had recently purchased some strychnine at Enbanks for the pretended purpose of killing crows for taking up his corn. He had been living with the woman, but was not legally married to her. It is thought he wanted to get her out of the way to marry her daughter. All of the parties are colored.

BE GENTLE TO THY HUSBAND.

From Dear Kate's Scrap-Book.

Be gentle; there are hours when he is anxious care is tossed;

And shadows deep lie on his brow,

By business trials crossed.

Be gentle; 'tis for you he toils,

And thinks and strives to gain

Home comforts and home happiness,

Don't let him strive in vain.

Be gentle; though some heavy word

Should fall, as it is not meant;

A smile, a kind word will recall,

And many more prevent.

Be gentle; Oh, 'twill soothe much care,

And make each burden light;

A gentle tone will smooth the brow,

And draw an answer bright.

Be gentle; though it may seem hard

To check an angry word;

Yet try and it will surely bring

A full and rich reward.

No wife ever lived truer up to the sentiments of the above lines than she

who has recently been called to her reward in Heaven. A truer, more faithful, loving and model wife never blessed unworthy man, and he who is now overwhelmed with grief feels that it was an unpardonable grief privilege to have enjoyed her confidence and love, and that "it was better to have loved and lost, than never to have loved at all."

WILLIAMSBURG, WHITLEY COUNTY.

—Mr. J. S. Jones preached last Sunday morning and evening at the M. E. church.

—Mr. E. E. Nelson is clerking in the drug store of Hignely & Jamieson. Mr. M. K. Pennington, who had been with them for some months past, returned to his home last Sunday. Mr. C. W. Lester was at Pine Knot last week, settling up the estate of John Davis, dec'd. Miss Fannie Taylor is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wetmore, in Chicago.

—Misses Bond and Arthur, of Lawrenceburg, are guests of Mrs. E. S. Moss, J. A. Butler, who has been attending school at the A. & M. College, Lexington, is spending part of his vacation here. Mr. George Ellison and Miss Sidney Stunell spent last Sunday in London, Misses Andrews and Culver, who have been teaching in the Academy, left for their homes Monday. They will visit Middleboro and Cumberland Gap first.

—The closing exercises of Williamsburg Academy took place last week. The primary department gave their entertainment last Wednesday morning, the intermediate department in the evening and the graduating exercises were held at the Congregational church on Friday afternoon. The church was handsomely decorated and filled to its fullest capacity, as the Industrial Hall had been at the other exercises. Prof. Stephens, of Clear Water, Minn., will be principal next year and we hope it will continue to be successful in the future as it has been in the past.

—Circuit Court convened Monday, with Judge Boyd presiding. The grand jury was soon made up and W. R. Benham was appointed foreman. Up to the present it has returned several indictments for small offenses and one against Sam McCargue for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Satter and one against Wm. Brian for false swearing. W. F. Hall, of Harlan C. H., F. F. Bobbitt, of Crab Orchard, A. J. Sparks, of London, H. L. Howard, of Harlan C. H., and J. A. Marra, of Jellico, Tenn., are among the visiting attorneys. All of the misdemeanor cases were called and disposed of on Monday and Tuesday and the case of Wilburn Cornett, of Harlan, for murder, was called first Wednesday morning.

NO NOMINATION YET.

Blaine's Frinds Playing for Time,

And if They Can Not Down
Harrison,

Will Bring Out a Dark Horse.

A 29-Minute Session Yesterday, and an Adjournment till 8 P. M.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 9.—The convention met shortly after 11 o'clock and at the request of the committee on Credentials, which was not ready to report, an adjournment was had till 8 o'clock tonight, nothing being done in the 29 minutes that the body was in session.

The committee says it will report tonight, but if it does not the convention seems determined to have contests decided on floor of convention hall in order to get test vote as to strength of rival candidates.

The Blaine men seem to fear their strength and are playing for time to fix some of the southern delegates, or convey Blaine's strength to a dark horse.
The plumed knight's name is no longer magical and it seems that Harrison has got the call.

The committee on resolutions has practically completed its work. One of the most important planks yet to be considered is the one providing for the election of U. S. Senator by the people. One plank expresses sympathy for the oppressed Jews. The silver question is straddled.

The Blaine forces secured first blood by the selection of J. Sloan Fassett, of New York, for temporary chairman over Senator Culbourn, of Illinois, by a vote of 29 to 20. Kentucky voting solidly for the latter, who was run in the interest of Mr. Harrison. The selection was made by the National committee, and on the assembly of the convention at 12:30 Tuesday it was endorsed by acclamation. Fassett made a long speech and so did Thomas Backen Reed, the ex-Czar, and at 1:54 the convention adjourned till 11
Wednesday morning.

Nearly all the contests were settled in favor of the anti-administration men, but Harrison's followers claim that they have enough votes to nominate their man without getting down to small disputes. It will require 152 votes to nominate and they say they have them, while the Blaine men are equally accomplished. Gov. McKinley, a Harrison man, was chosen permanent chairman, but the work is usually gotten in by the temporary presiding officer. The convention was only in session two hours Wednesday and nothing of importance was done. It is the tactics of the Blaine men to delay balloting and till then they were successful. Foraker, another Blaine man, was made chairman of the committee on resolutions and the Kentucky delegation was placed as follows: Permanent organization, D. J.
Burchett; rules and order of business,
W. H. Milby; resolutions, Geo. Denny, Jr.; credentials, John Feland.

Col. Bradley is to second the nomination of Harrison and his friends predict that the Chicago paper will not be able to say aught against him this time. The colonel, while he never did deserve the strictures of that sheet, has learned a great deal in the last four years.

THERE is no chance for harmony, it seems, between the New York delegations, except in one particular—both have promised to support the nominee, no matter whom he may be. The Hill delegation decided by a vote of 69 to 1,
to stand by Hill "until he is nominated, or as long as he will permit the use of his name before the convention." This won't be long, of course, and the delegates, like good boys, will raise their voices for Grover Cleveland.

The law firm of Helm & Bruce, Louisville, which has gonged the State for years, put in a claim for a $20,000 fee in a back tax suit in which $80,000 was recovered, in addition to $5,000 already paid them. Gov. Brown very properly thought it too much and arbitrators have been agreed on to settle it. As lawyers stand together in such matters, there is not much hope for the State, which is swindled and gonged by everybody who can get a chance.

—The Alabama democratic convention renominated Gov. Jones.

THE Louisville Times is moved to say what everybody else is thinking, that should Blaine be nominated the selection of Cleveland by the democrats is assured beyond doubt; should the president finally defeat his opponents the nomination of Cleveland is still probable because the Minneapolis developments will have largely impaired the strength of those considerations which up to recently should and doubtless would have militated against Cleveland's nomination. A man, interested singly in the success of his party, who, a few days ago, might have thought the nomination of Cleveland inexpedient and hopeless, might very well now be brought to regard it as the best thing to be done.

The Maryland democrats, in convention assembled, endorsed Cleveland, but refused to recommend his nomination.
The Maine convention recommended his nomination; the Mississippians did not instruct and the Texans resolved that the ex-president should be renominated and silver and other issues ignored.

THE CUMBERLAND VALLEY REPUBLICAN, Harlan's new paper, is a very creditable sheet. It is edited by John B. Hurst and is for D. G. Colson all over for Congress.

THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

—The House adopted the section of the election bill, which fixes 4 o'clock as the hour for closing the polls.

—On a reconsideration of the geological survey bill, designed to continue it,
the Senate voted 20 to 10 in favor of continuance.

—The salary of the State railroad commissioners, proposed by the revisory commission at $3,000 a year, was reduced by the Senate to $2,000, the present salary of the commissioners, as it should have been.

—It is to be hoped that the petition presented by Hon. John S. May, from citizens of Polaski, Wayne and Whitley counties, asking for the establishment of a new county to be known as Coal county, and to be composed of portions of Polaski, Wayne and Whitley, will be set down on with a dull thud. There are too many pauper counties now.

NEWSY NOTES.

ison county, became violently insane while going to consult a doctor. It is thought he will die.

with a capital of $10,000,000, suspended payment Wednesday. Assets and liabilities are about $45,000,000 each.

—The exact loss of life in the oil Creek valley will never be known, but it is several hundred. Nearly 1,500 people are homeless in Hill City and Tim-biville.

aster in the Birkenberg mine in Austria places the number of lives lost at 332.
The bodies of 301 men have been recovered.

—Oregon has gone republican, as usual,
by a heavy majority. The republicans elect the State officers, the two Congressmen and a majority of both branches of the Legislature.

—Austin Porter, who murdered his wife near Willard, May 25, was taken from the jail at Grayson by a mob and hanged from a railroad bridge near Willard Monday. His last request was to be buried beside the woman he had murdered.

—At Hendrix during a fight at a republican primary convention, Joseph Higgins shot and killed Robt. Patrick.
Ex-County Assessor Daniel B. Greene lost an ear and Elijah Dungan was knocked down with a stone and probably fatally injured.

—The gentlemen of the World's Fair State board have divided their work as follows: W. H. Dulaney, manufactures; Young E. Allison, fine arts and liberal arts; Dr. John D. Chardy, agriculture and horticulture; James D. Black, minerals; John W. Yerkes, live stock.

—The House passed a bill which is designed to restrain the gambling in options or futures in which the market prices of ordinary products are involved.
It is on a high license order, and the taxation of products so dealt in is so heavy as to practically abolish speculation of this sort.

—The mob that took W. A. James, the scoundrel who deserted his dying wife at Lebanon, did not hang him as stated, but gave him the worst flogging on record, 20 men laying it on with huge whips, till his back was like a piece of raw beef and blood ran from his mouth.

—The Bible College at Lexington graduated 22 young preachers this week.

LONDON, LAUREL COUNTY.

—Judge Robert Boyd is at Williamsburg holding the regular term of the Whitley circuit court.

—A hop was given at the Riley House Tuesday night, which is reported to have been quite a happy affair.

—Prof. James A. Yates opened a normal school at the Academy, this week, with about 30 teachers in attendance.

—W. R. Hackney and J. M. Robinson have returned from Lexington, where they have been attending the State College during the past year.

—A. B. Dyche is attending the Republican National Convention. Miss Lucy White, of Manchester, is visiting Miss May Boring. Misses Emma Garrard, Eva White and Daisy Potter, who have been with friends at Pittsburg, left for Barbourville Wednesday afternoon.

—It is not without a degree of satisfaction that we note the disruption in the convention assembled at Minneapolis, not that we enjoy strife, but because we are willing for the enemy to "play fool" for a season, while we get ourselves in shape to enter the campaign with such union of strength that Harrison, Blaine, or any other who may be chosen can be wiped from the face of the earth. With Cleveland against Blaine surely the democratic heart would become filled with hope—Cleveland did it once—he can do it again.

MT. VERNON, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—Mrs. Barnside's musical entertainment will take place on the night of the 24th.

Rockcastle river, dropped dead from heart disease a few days since.

—Mrs. Ella Langford caught a 20 inch bass, weighing four pounds, near Langford Station, in Round Stone, Wednesday.

—From a Tennessee paper I learn that Jack McCall, formerly of this county, now of Hurricane, Tenn., is rejoicing
over the advent of twins at his house.
Grover and Peter are their names.

—A disastrous hail storm occurred a mile southwest of this place Monday.
Corn, oats, wheat, etc., in many places
was literally beaten from the ground.

—Mr. Reuben Brown died of heart disease Tuesday. He had been plowing and when a shower came up he ran to a spring-house on the farm. He was found shortly afterwards dead.

—A 13-months-old child of Jas. Moore was drowned Wednesday evening in a pool near the house. The little fellow crawled out from the door unnotified and when found a few minutes afterwards,
he was in the water, dead.

—Mr. John Buchanan, of Crab Orchard, was here Tuesday. Mr. D. C.
Poynter is in Louisville and Mr. C. W.
Adams is holding things down at the store. Mr. John Williams has returned from Danville. Misses Maggie Spradlin and Daisy Dye are here from Fountain Head, Tenn. Misses Vivian Weber has arrived from Hamilton College.

—Rev. J. C. Carnahan's horse ran away with him as he was coming down the hill just south of town, Wednesday.
Both horse and rider broke and the horse tumbled down the hill at a high speed.
When nearing the school the rider was thrown over the horse's head, the animal jumping over the prostrate form, and one foot striking him in the back. Injuries not serious.

—Aunt Pop Proctor, who had a stroke of paralysis a few days since, is resting somewhat easier. Mrs. M. C. Miller and children, of Austin, Texas, are with relatives here. Col. Richard Thomas was in from Cincinnati the first of the week. Mr.
and Mrs. G. W. McClure and daughter, Bessie, attended the closing exercises of the Blind Asylum, Louisville. Misses Lena McClure and Mary Ferguson, students of the institution, returned with them. Mrs. A. Pennington is on a two weeks' visit in Jackson county. Ashley Dixons, late of Missouri, now of Livingston, was here Monday, looking as well as he did 40 years ago.

—Another bloody murder occurred in the eastern part of this county this week.
Bill Fair shot and killed Jesse Helton.
Fair, who was drinking, went to Helton's house carrying with him an old banjo.
Helton was not at home, but arriving a few minutes afterwards, found Fair playing the banjo and the children dancing.
Helton abhorred a banjo and ordered
Fair to desist, which he refused to do.
Helton then ordered him to leave the house and upon his refusal to do so Helton took him by the shoulder and pushed him through the door. Fair drew a 44 revolver and sent a ball through Helton's bowels, which caused his death the next day. The dead man was married and had always been a peaceable man. I have been unable to learn the reputation of the slayer. Fair was arrested at Livingston Sunday night while attempting to board a train, was jailed here and preliminary trial held Wednesday and bond placed at $2,000, which the person was unable to give.

results.

we hope to hear in the great hereafter,

ended. S. M. E.

TWO NEW SCREENS.

They May Be Adapted in Size to Any Purpose Desired.

These forms of screens are intended for the table lamp screens, but may be adapted in size to any purpose desired. The standards may be home-made and of simple form, according to the material and skill used, or may be obtained from a cabinet maker or brass fitter, if metal is preferred. For screen No. 1 make the frame of reglets, such as printers have, cut about 15 inches long, crossed and securely fastened together in the form shown. Cut a piece of stiff lining canvas 15 inches square, and sixteen pieces of some plain, light-colored silk 4 inches square, and mark the center of each piece. Lay the frame on the lining, and mark upon it the outlines of the reglets, marking also the center of each panel. Then gather the edges of the squares evenly all around and sew them on the lining so that the reglets will cover the edges when in place; sew a velvet button or a silk ball on the center of each square through the lining, and arrange the folds of the puff by hidden stitches. These folds may be all alike, or all different, as in the sketch. Cover the reglets with bands of three-fourths inch velvet ribbon to match the buttons, and line the back with same color. Finish at the bottom with fringe.

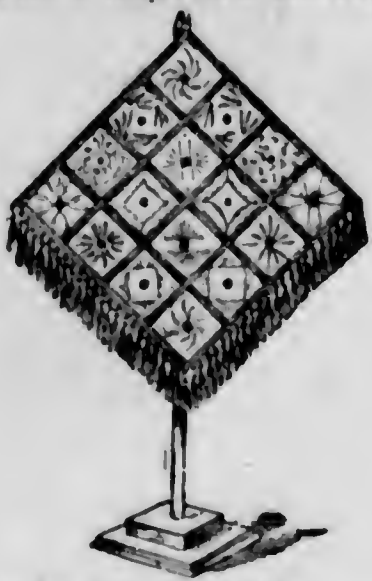

FIG. 1.—AN OLD SCREEN.

The fan-like frame in No. 2 is also made of reglets radiating from a center at the top of the standard and covered with velvet, as in the first design. These should be about 11 inches long, forming a fan of 10 inches radius; cut a semi-circular lining of this size from canvas and mark out the frame upon it as before. Cut off the circular edge from point to point so as to give the angles at the top; then fill in the panels with puffs of silk, cut with a pattern a half-inch larger all around than the panels, gathering the edges and setting them on, as in the other screen. The back should be similar to the front of the screen. Finish with lace at the top and fringe at the bottom.—American Agriculturist.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

To CLEAN a black silk dress use a sponge dipped in strong black tea, cold. SPINKLE cayenne pepper in the resorts of rats and they will leave the premises.

HEADACHE, toothache, backache or most any joint ache will be relieved by heating the feet thoroughly with the shoes on.

If a dish gets burnt in using, do not scrape it; put a little water and ashes in it and let it get warm. It will come off nicely.

MANY a mad man, and perhaps more women, would have been saved from insanity if they had resolutely obtained sufficient sleep.

PINE may be made to look like some beautiful wood by giving repeated coats of hot linseed oil and rubbing hard after each coat.

The light, rough storm coats that are so useful for spring wear, invariably have deep capes lined either with bright scarlet or some bright plaid silk.

According to the Medical Record, castor oil has not failed in any case to remove warts to which it was applied once a day for two to six weeks.

KEROSENE will make a tin kettle as bright as new. Wet a flannel cloth and rub with it. Kerosene will also remove stains and dirt from varnished furniture.

It is said that a Paris laundryman has discarded all soaps, sodas and boiling powders. He merely uses plenty of water and boiled potatoes, and can cleanse without employing any alkali the worst soiled linens, cottons or woollens.

For Economical Housekeepers.

The shoulder piece of beef can be made into a tender and delicate dish by letting it cook in its own juices in the oven without a particle of water. A stone jar with a tight-fitting cover, or a lid made of plain dough will keep in the flavor and juices, and the tough fiber and gristle are softened by the mild heat. It must be put in three or four hours before dinner time. The heat that comes through the stone is very different from that of hot iron, and it is the slow acting of the steady heat that makes a rich dish out of a cheap joint.—Home Queen.

POOR ROAD SYSTEMS.

Mistakes in the Location and Management of Country Highways.

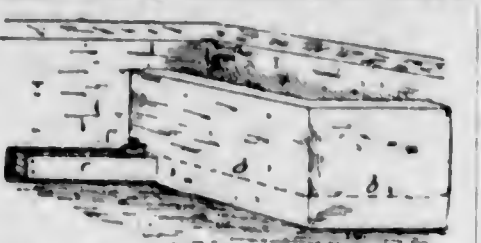

As a general thing, the country roads on this continent have been so badly located that to build costly pavements upon the present lines, and previously provide elaborate systems of drainage, would be a dreadful waste of money. As it is ordinarily beyond the means of country people to do more than improve the present condition of their roads, this is the task that they should undertake as soon as possible. In beginning such a task, the first step to be taken, in my opinion, is to stop doing that which has generally been the custom in this country—that is, working the roads. Working the roads, as it is generally practiced in this country, consists in calling out in each road district a gang of men who "work out" their road tax under an overseer elected by the people. The labor done is worse than thrown away, for it is rare indeed for either the overseer or the men under him to have any clear comprehension of what is needed. Fortunately for the well-being of the roads, these men do not work very hard, but rather choose to regard the few days on the road as a kind of holiday outing, a picnic frolic, and a means of getting rid of a certain amount of tax. If they really worked with all their might, they would make the roads almost as impassable in the summer as they now are in the late winter and early spring. With some kind of a glimmering idea that ditches on each side of a road are good to have, they plow up these ditches, together with the soil that grows down into them, and pile all of this muck in the middle of the road. This material, it may be said, has a most excellent fertilizing value, and if it were put upon the fields instead of in the roads it would amply repay the farmers who carted it away. But in the road it is a sad and an immediate hindrance to travel. Luckily, the friendly spring rains usually wash it back into the ditches, where it stays until some more tax is to be "worked out." When these rains are not sufficient to wash away these impediments that have been deliberately placed in the roads, the consequences are very dusty roads during all the dry season.

In some neighborhoods a little more ambitious than those generally to be found, they mend the roads by placing gravel and broken stone upon them. Then the overseers say that they are macadamizing the roads. Without thoroughly draining the road-bed, to put broken stone or gravel upon it is merely a waste of money and labor, and the ambitious neighborhoods so doing prove in the end no wiser than those who cover their roads with muck. But it is within the means of every neighborhood in the United States to materially improve their roads at once—improve them so much that where the traffic is not extremely heavy and continuous, the roads will be in tolerable order nine months in the year, and very much better than at present, even when the frost is coming out of the ground at the beginning of spring. And this can be done in three or four or five years without spending one penny more than is now spent in the hurtful methods mentioned.—Harper's Weekly.

CISTERN FOR BARN.

It Is Far Better to Locate It Above Instead of Under Ground.

Where it is desired to have a cistern at the barn, it is better to locate it above and not under ground. The accompanying illustration, engraved after a sketch from L. D. Snook, will give an idea of this. There will be no need of a pump nor any exertion to fill the trough. It is economy to construct the cistern wall at the same time that the outer and foundation walls of the building are laid, but the wall may be built of stone, or brick laid in water-lime mortar after the building is finished. For a hundred-barrel cistern the two outer walls should be one foot thick, but the inner walls resting against the basement need not be over eight inches in thickness. The bottom of the cistern is filled in with stones, or well packed earth, to the depth of eighteen inches, as indicated by the dotted lines at b, and the whole is thoroughly plastered with cement mortar. The inlet pipe may be placed at a, as indicated in the engraving, while the outlet pipe is near one corner, and is provided with a stopcock. The watering trough is seen at c. An overflow pipe can be located at any point within two inches of the top of the cistern and should have one-third greater capacity than the inlet pipe, thus preventing all danger from overflowing. The top of the cistern may be covered over with boards, if desired. If necessary, pipes can be laid from the cistern to any part of the basement and other watering places established.—American Agriculturist.

CONVENIENT BARN BASEMENT CISTERN.

How to Teach the Word "Whoa."

I teach the word "whoa" by a biting arrangement which is a simple one. It consists of a straight bit with a small cord attached to the rings. Bring this over his head as though it were a bridle and pull it gently back on his neck. Of course he will refuse to give up to it at first, but work by degrees. Keep him checked only a few minutes at a time, but repeat the operation until he will give to the bit, which he will do in twenty or thirty minutes. Now fasten a cord to the ring of the bit, stand in front of him and say: "Come here," pull him gently and if he refuses to obey, touch him lightly with the whip around the foreleg. He will soon follow you and just as soon as he will do this press on the bridle and say: "Whoa." Continue this kind of treatment for some little time and it will pay you well for doing it.—J. W. Smith, in Troy Times.

HOUSEKEEPERS' CORNER.

KEEP flowers fresh by putting a pinch of soda in the water.

Boil the clothesline, and it will not "kink," as a new rope is apt to do.

KEEP a small box filled with lime in your pantry and cellar; it will keep the air dry and pure.

SODA is the best thing for cleaning tinware; apply with a damp cloth and rub well, then wipe dry.

Potatoes, before baking so that the air can escape; this will prevent their bursting in the oven.

For sore throat beat the white of an egg stiff with all the sugar it will hold and the juice of one lemon.

When baking cakes set a dish of water in the oven with them and they will not be in any danger from scorching.

GREASE spots that have burnt and become hard on the stove, may be removed by a few drops of kerosene oil on the cloth before rubbing them.

To MEND large holes in socks or in undergarments, tack a piece of strong net over and darn through it. The darn will be stronger and neater than without it.

To CLEAN a stove zinc or zinc-lined bathtub, mix ammonia and whiting to a smooth paste, apply it to the zinc and let it dry. Then rub it off until no dust remains.

A TEASPOONFUL of alum will make clear four gallons of muddy water. Boiling the water is necessary to remove disease germs when a farm pump or town reservoir has a bad name.

When scaling fish, hold them under water in a pan; then the scales will not fly in your face, but will fall to the bottom, and when the water is poured from them are ready to turn into the step pail or compost heap.

FIVE or six quarts of biscuit flour can be prepared at a time by taking one teaspoonful of soda and two of cream of tartar, or three of baking powder to every quart of flour, sifting it thoroughly three times and put away for use.

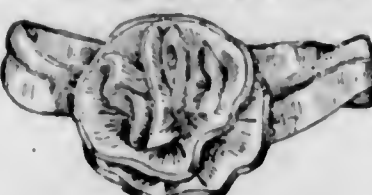

ONIONS are improved by soaking in warm salt water an hour or so before cooking, as this removes some of the rank flavor. They cook tender much quicker, if sliced in rings instead of splitting. If they are peeled and sliced with hands under water, some "litter" may be avoided.

BELTS AND BOWS.

Stylish Finish to Any Set of Pretty Summer Gown.

The pretty belt shown in illustration is a stylish finish to any sort of cool summer gown, and may be made of ribbon or of the dress material with a big rosette of silk crepe in some shade which will harmonize with the rest of the costume. A dainty piece of neckwear is made of white and green ribbon bows set closely together and fastened so that they look like white flowers amid green leaves. The bows are sewed upon a green ribbon which is tied at the back of the neck.

With the madness for Watteau draperies there has arisen a mild craving for the Watteau bow. The craze is at present chiefly confined to young misses. The bow is from two to four inches in width, and bright colors seem to take preference over dull ones. It is usually made up in two loops when it is placed in the center of the back of the bodice, from which point the long fluttering ends hang to the foot hem.—Farm and Home.

ROBE FOR INVALIDS.

The Clever Invention of an Ingenious Yankee Woman.

Lizzie H. Fifield, of Manchester, N. H., by her invention has added one ray of hope and comfort to the bed-ridden invalid, to whom the necessary change of garments is a dreaded ordeal because of the turning and twisting required to get into and out of them. By the use of the robe here shown the nurse can make the required changes without adding greatly to the discomfort of the invalid. The garment is made up of two front pieces joined together vertically at the front and joined by buttons at the sides to the two back pieces which are united by buttons or similar devices along a horizontal line about the middle of the robe. Longitudinally divided sleeves are detachably connected to the body portion at the armpoles, and a removable collar is also provided. The manner of adjusting this robe to the patient is too obvious to need further description.—Mechanical News.

Try It Without Delay.

To keep off mosquitoes take a small quantity of a two per cent. carbolic acid solution, and sprinkle sheets, coverlets, pillow and bolster on both sides, the edges of bed curtains and the wall next the bed. The face and neck may also be slightly wetted with the solution. Not a single gnaw or mosquito will come near.

Cleaning Bottles.

Egg shells are nice to clean bottles or cruets, also little bits of raw potato and soap. Shake well, then rinse several times.

BOBBITT IN THE MOUNTAINS.

(To the Editor Interior Journal.)

WILLIAMSBURG, June 6. — I am back at this propitious mountain city again. Circuit court convened here yesterday for a four weeks' session, with a full docket and a crowded house of eager spectators. I am stopping with the genial gentleman, the efficient sheriff, the brave knight and clever landlord, Matt Moore, who keeps the Williamsburg and feels his guest like a Nabob in India.

I left Crab Orchard Sunday and enjoyed the beautiful mountain scenery very much. The rugged dells, the deep, dark mountain gorges, the lofty mountains, the storm-beaten cliffs, towering high overhead, defying time and laughing to scorn the raging tempests, for more than 60 centuries, whose snows and hails, winds and rains, have been upon them in vain! Eight different times the train hid itself in the dark bosom of the earth, but as often the vapory fingers of steam brought it forth again into the glorious sunlight and it went waving on with its burden, while the Genius of Progress, with brow festooned with wild mountain flowers, rode triumphantly upon the smoke stack. A lofty, yet humble and sooty throne for a queen regent! When London was reached a creature so beautiful, so lovely, so far superior in all perfection to any I had ever seen before, caused me to remark to those sitting near: "Old Peter has been rather careless this beautiful Sunday evening and has left the golden cage a little ajar."

"Why so?" asked several. "Because," I replied, "I see an angel has slipped out and come down on a visit to London." I told them that if she were a created being of earthly essence that when nature formed the design of creating her she called together all that was beautiful, graceful and lovely in the animated world—the dark-eyed gazelle, whose eyes she had, the graceful antelope, the liberty-loving chamois of the Alps, the sweet singing nightingale, the beautiful humming bird—and selecting the choicest parts of each, she formed this heavenly creature and then standing back and looking admiringly at her magical work, exclaimed, "Perfect!" For never did Grecian chisel trace

"A nymph, a naiad or a grace Of finer form or lovelier face."
Send a copy of the next issue of you unequalled semi-weekly paper to Miss Sidney Stanfill, Williamsburg, and if not called for there, and if there should be any postal facilities on the Celestial shore, the post-master will forward it on and it will probably find its appropriate destination and be delivered to the proper recipient.

Now I shall talk about something less lovely and less beautiful—Judge Boyd and his court. His honor's instructions to the grand jury were unambiguously grand. He fined the gay and jovial jailer $5 for appearing in the presence of the court intoxicated and recognized him in a bond of $200 to appear before the grand jury to tell where he got his whiskey. I looked every minute for him to tell the jailer to go and put himself in jail, lock the door and send the court the key. This is the judge who recently removed the jailer from his office in the county of Laurel for suffering prisoners to run at large over town, and although that jailer was a republican, he now wishes to find the jailer's keys no more. Judge Boyd says the place for a man sent to jail is within the walls, and the judge is exactly right. The few weeks' confinement in jail before trial is often the only punishment the bloodiest of murderers ever get. I have heard of a jailer in a county adjoining Lincoln that allowed even a guilty paricide to visit the young ladies in the town and go on a visit as far as Harrodsburg. Blackstone says that it is an escape to allow a prisoner more liberty than the law allows—that is to let him run at large, and it matters not that the prisoner does not take advantage of the jailer's criminal negligence, the opportunity to escape and the evil resulting to the boys of the country seeing a blood-stained murderer going at large, is the same. So well did our English ancestors understand this that they destroyed everything (even innuities) that had caused the death of a man, as a wagon wheel that had run over him, a knife with which he had been killed, that the people might not become familiar with murder. If Judge Boyd were on the bench in the 8th judicial district how long would that clever and ultra-humane jailer carry the keys of the jail of the county to which I refer and which you so well know which I mean Perhaps the Reporter and Republican will publish this letter, or an extract therefrom. I mean no ill-will towards that jailer; I only mean to censure friends as well as foes, when they deserve it.

When Judge Boyd was instructing the grand jury on the 16-year-old seduction law he was most severe and eloquent. He said those young men who went about to soil and to stain the fair name of the young and unsuspecting were the greatest criminals in all the land and deserved the felon's cell in the State penitentiary. I could see the poisonous Ivy growing upon the ruined castle of virtue where innocence once dwelt. He seemed to think that the worst sinner in or out of hell was he who employed the graces of his person and the treasures of his mind to dazzle the senses and influence the passions of poor, weak and erring woman that he might triumph over her virtue and exult over the ruin he had wrought. That even a kiss upon the coral lips of beauty was nothing but a torch applied to the magazine of the passions; that no one could inhale the fragrance of the rose from afar that did not go to taste the sweetness of its dewy leaves.

FONTAINE FOX BOBBITT.

Which Side.

A youngster who, having been presented by his uncle with a new suit of clothes, became for the first time in his life interested in his personal appearance, and insisted upon having a collar put on and having his hair combed. Taking the comb to the neck that gave him the clothes he requested him to comb his hair.

"Well," said the uncle, "which side shall I part it on?"

The youngster's ideas on the subject of hairdressing were quite vague, but he was equal to the emergency.

"Well, on the outside, I guess," said he.—Boston Transcript.

A Chip of the Old Block.

Bingo—What's the matter with your clothes, Bobby?
Bobby (merrily)—I fell down on my way from school.
Bingo—Who licked?—New York Sun.

How He Rode.

The character of the old Illinois courts, in which Abraham Lincoln practiced, was very primitive. In one case a lively stable horse had died soon after being returned, and the person who had hired it was sued for damages. The question turned largely upon the reputation of the defendant as a hard rider. A witness was called—a long, lank westerner.

"How does Mr. So-and-so usually ride?" asked the lawyer.

Without a gleam of intelligence, the witness replied:

"Astraddle, sir."

"No, no," said the lawyer; "I mean, does he usually walk or trot or gallop?"

"Well," said the witness, "presently searching in the depths of his memory for facts, 'when he was a walkin' home he trots, when he was a trottin' home he trots, and when he was a gallopin' home he gallops, when—'"

The lawyer was angry. "I want to know what got the defendant suddenly takes—fast or slow?"

"Well," said the witness, "when his company rides fast he takes fast, and when his company rides slow he takes slow."

"I want to know, sir," the lawyer said, very much exasperated and very stern, now, "how Mr. So-and-so rides when he is alone?"

"Well," said the witness, more slowly and meditatively than ever, "as he was alone I wasn't along and I don't know."

The laugh at the questioner ended the cross examination.—Century.

Getting His Eyes Opened.

Jim Doolittle lately married a Fifth Avenue society lady, and a quarrelsome of an impending divorce was averted. He complains that his wife has a very bad temper and dirts with Tom, Dick and Harry.

"When did you first get acquainted with your wife?" asked a friend.

"I have known her for a good while, but I didn't get really acquainted with her until after we were married," replied Jim with a sigh.—Texas Siftings.

A Servant's Recommendation.

A Pennsylvania woman who quite prided herself upon never "taking impudence" from a servant, was greatly astonished lately by a domestic who was leaving her in "high dudgeon."

"There is one thing I will say of ye," said the irate Bridget; "that is, I can recommend ye as being the best liddy I ever worked for in all me life for takin' impudence and not a-gittin' mad at it!"—Wide Awake.

Pointers.

Bulfinch—How is it, Mr. Johnsing, that you dress up so fine every other way and you always wear a pair of trousers that bag so terribly at the knee?

Mr. Johnsing—Well, you see, Massa Bulfinch, that my feet's done set on so high in the middle that I can't tell which way I was agwine, if it wasn't for dose bags at the knee.—Boston Courier.

Two Papas.

Wee Hostess—Mamma, shall I invite Lucy Littany to my party?
Mamma—Certainly. She is the minister's daughter.

"Do ministers' daughters get invited everywhere?"

"Always."

"They has lots of fun, I guess. I wish my papa was a minister 'stead of a mis'able sinner."—Good News.

LAMB CREEP OR HURDLE.

A Contrivance in High Favor with Skillful Flockmasters.

The creep is allowed to run forward and drop the choicest herbage before the older sheep soil it. Some creeps are adjustable to the size of the lamb, others are fixtures, and the upright bars through which they pass are round and smooth and revolve upon an axis of iron or on an iron spike. The revolving rollers leave the wool undisturbed. Lambs to do well must have change, freedom and a private hutch; all this can be accomplished through the use of the creep. The revolvers of the plan I send you are stationary. The distance between the rollers must be made to suit the breed. For instance, for Merinos, six inches between the uprights will be sufficient, and from eight to ten inches wide will meet the demands of all other breeds. When sufficiently large to fill the different spaces the youngsters will be fit to wean; meanwhile the ewes cannot force themselves through the creep.

LAMB CREEP.

The frame can be made of light iron or 2 by 3 scantling. The two posts on each side have a hook top and bottom for latching the wire netting, making it convenient for moving. The netting should be thirty inches high. The posts are looped with iron at the top and caulked at the bottom. The creeps (A) are twenty-four inches high and are shown in the cutting to be of disproportionate width between the rollers, which should be set from six to eight or ten inches apart according to the breed. The rollers (B) turn on iron spikes, or inch gas pipe answers the purpose if properly set so as to allow of revolution. Or these uprights may be made stationary. The slide through which the rollers or uprights pass is adjustable, so that it can be set to the height of the lambs and fixed there by iron pins. The ends of the slide should be thin plate iron which can be easily moved up and down in the slots in the posts.

When you want to bring out a lot of early run or weather lambs for the fall or Christmas shows no time should be lost. An enclosure of hurdles with troughs and feed inside and creep in the center of the fold should at once be erected in the field, so that the lambs may go through at will to feed on crushed cake, peas or oats, and when satisfied return outside and steal a drink of their mother's milk, or the system I work on myself is, I think, still preferable—feeding the lambs three times a day, giving them only what they will consume for the time being.

Lambs are very dainty in their eating; the least offensive smell seems at once to disgust them. In the first place they should have feed troughs specially for themselves. These should be about six feet long, the bottom six inches wide and the sides not more than two inches in height; they should be raised about four inches from the ground and a round pole should run along the top of the trough from one end to the other to prevent the lambs from jumping from one side of the feed box to the other, which they continually keep doing, dropping dirt from their feet in the trough and wasting much feed. The pole must be sufficiently high from the trough so as not to interfere with the lamb reaching the feed.

I prefer a flat bottomed feed box to a V-shaped one. Lambs like their feed in troughs so formed, I presume, because they do not blow on the food when spread on a flat surface nearly so much as when placed deep in a narrow space. Feed little at a time is the great secret. Let the shepherd stand by while the lambs are eating and as they clean their dish add a handful more. By such handling it is astonishing the quantity of grub you can coax them to stuff into their little stomachs, and it is marvelous how lambs develop under such treatment.

The shepherd should when the lambs are eating take particular notice of the gross feeders—the big constitutioned sorts—for these are the ones he has to depend on for winning honors in the show arena. He should also stamp on his memory the ewes that have produced the best lambs, so that he may bestow on them every care to reproduce to advantage.

I take care that lambs under my charge wake up every morning to a liberal feed of cake and oats, and at night they receive the same before resting their heads on the pillow. What contented children a hearty snorer makes them! Not a whisper is heard till breakfast hour the following day. In the morning I no sooner enter the feeding fold than there is a general rush as to which of the lambs will pass first through the creep. What more beautiful sight can there be than a lot of fine thrifty lambs crowding around the feed boxes crunching cake and corn. What music there is in that crunch!—William Watson in Breeder's Gazette.

The Standard of Horse Flesh. Recent developments in the horse market show several facts. One is that the standard of horse flesh of all kinds has advanced so rapidly in this country that what would have been a good horse before the war would be a scarecrow now. Second, the live farmer and breeder must keep pace with this advancing standard or he will be bankrupted. High grade horses of all kinds sell readily at a good price, but inferior animals bring almost nothing. The taste is so critical that few horses come up to present requirements of the market.

It is a mistake about Prof. M. D. Hughes running a candidate for trustee in his interest at Rowland. It was talked of, but given up at his request.

THE Interior Journals and Danvilles cross hats again at the home of the latter to day, at 3 p. m., when it is hoped our namesakes will redeem themselves.

THE Danvilles came up here Tuesday and hosted the Interior Journals again. We fear our boys are losing east, and as the subject is a painful one we will drop it for the present.

I have employed R. M. Smith, a splendid shoemaker from Lexington, Va., and am prepared to do all work given me. Repairing ladies' flexible bottoms a specialty. Ladies' fine shoes also made. T. J. Hatcher.

A THUNDER on the road running from Yosemite to Kingsville gave away while a train was passing over it yesterday, and two men were caught under the wreck. It is not yet known how badly they are hurt. Two cars were literally demolished.

Mrs. Rhoads, a young widow, was rowdied at Sunset by Mrs. Wm. Vick, who claimed that the widow had led her dog to stray. The assault was made as the congregation at the Barnes meeting was dispersing and created a great sensation.

EVERYTHING is in readiness for a grand hop to-night at Walton's Opera House. The Merry Bachelors make a special request that spectators occupy the gallery, which will be neat and clean, as the dancers will no doubt fill all the space on the floor.

JUDGE M. C. SATTERLY recently announced his candidacy by card, and today his name appears in the formal announcement column. He has met with great encouragement in his race and his friends think he is sure to win. The power of any of the candidates in any particular, he will, if chosen the party's standard-bearer, carry it triumphantly to victory and make a judge of whom not only the district, but the State, will be proud.

AN LUTHERAN PASTOR.—Well-known when young Mr. W. L. Duller went to Mr. P. B. Parrish's to steal away his pretty daughter, Miss Mary, the old gentleman met him with a shotgun and the would-be Benedict took to his heels. Some enemy had apprised Mr. Parrish of his coming and the romance was spoiled. Duller, who may be called a bad, had gotten his necks to Jellico, but the best laid plans of mice and men gang oft afield.

THE closing exercises of Christian College, Hustonville, was largely attended and the programme, which was an entertaining one, was carried out without a blunder. The graduates, Misses Ethyl Wright and Rebecca Cook, acquitted themselves with great honor and the musical numbers were all very fine. Those who attended from here were Mr. J. H. Yeager and Miss Pet Broadbent, Dr. J. A. Amon and Miss Lena Broadbent, Dr. A. S. Price and Miss Nettie Wray and Prof. B. F. Blakeman and Miss Sue Baughman.

It will be quite a surprise to his friends when they learn that Robert White, formerly of this place, has been a Benedict since April last. He was married in Middleboro, but is now residing at Cleveland, Ohio, with his wife's parents. For a little romance the young couple were clandestinely married and so secretly have they kept it that even Mr. White's mother was in ignorance of it until a few days ago. He has never told his wife's maiden name and Mr. and Mrs. Renben Williams only know their new daughter-in-law by her first name—Ella.

ONLY A BREACH OF THE PEACE.—When the case of L. M. Lasley for assaulting Prof. J. M. Hubbard, president of Stanford Female College, was called Wednesday, Messrs. R. C. Warren, W. H. Miller and J. B. Paxton appeared for the prosecution and Messrs. Robert Harding and John Sam Owsley, Jr., for the defense. Nearly two hours were spent in an effort of the defense to have the warrant for breach of the peace tried and as Judge Carson finally decided the matter, he might have saved much time by granting the motion. The prosecution insisted on an examination under the other warrant for assault and battery and on that the judge decided the investigation should proceed, but Mr. Harding is as tenacious and as pugnacious as a bull-dog and continued to argue against the decision for an hour after it was made. Finding he could not change the ruling he said he would refuse to plead to the assault and battery warrants, but thought better of it when Mr. Paxton suggested that the court could, in all probability, force him to do so, or enter a plea anyway. At the request of the defense an adjournment was had till 1 o'clock, at which hour the case was resumed. Great interest was taken in the trial and the court room was pretty well filled, a number of ladies adding their presence.

Prof. Hubbard was the first witness called. He testified that on the evening of June 21, while on his way to the post-office, he met Mr. Lasley to whom he said "Good evening, Mr. Lasley." He turned and retorted, "I do not want you to speak to me sir." "What did you say?" he asked, when Lasley repeated, "All I have done in this business has been my duty and I intend to stand by it and you needn't look at me," said H. At this Lasley struck him in the face, knocking him to his knees, and catching him around the neck dealt numerous other blows in his face. Dr. Peyton dressed the wounds, some of which were to the bone and he was laid up for two or three days. He did not strike at Lasley. Then followed a long cross examination with reference to the refusal to award the diploma, which seemed to have been totally irrelevant. A number of witnesses were introduced who corroborated the professor, with the addition that Lasley had also said, "Go on, I want no trouble."

J. H. Chappell said he and Lasley were sitting together and that Lasley had said that he had it in for Hubbard and that when they saw him coming one or the other remarked, "Here he comes now" and Lasley started in that direction. Witnesses were introduced to prove threats and to show that the assault was with malice aforethought.

L. M. Lasley deposed that he passed Hubbard near McKinney Bros. store and that when Hubbard spoke to him he told him he didn't want him to speak to him any more. "I'll not be the loser by that," said Hubbard. "Go on," said L. "I want nothing to do with you." "I don't want you to look at me, you contemptible puppy," rejoined Hubbard, who stuck his finger into my face."

He then struck Hubbard, who returned the blows and they clinched, when he gave him several blows and they were pulled apart. He corroborated Chappell's statement and when asked if he did not go toward Hubbard expressly to assault him, he replied, "Not altogether." Then followed a long statement about the refusal of Hubbard to give his daughter the diploma, unless she would read the essay Mrs. Hubbard had decided on. After hearing Miss Susie's statement of the case he told her that she should not read any and that the professor dare not carry out Mrs. Hubbard's threat that she would not be awarded her diploma and that the reasons would be publicly stated from the stage.

None of the witnesses said that the professor struck his hand in Lasley's mouth, but they agreed that he was gestulating with his hand. The expression "contemptible puppy" seems to have been used after the assault.

Miss Susie Lasley recounted the trouble about the essay and Mrs. Hubbard's refusal to allow her to read the one she had prepared with special care, without assigning a reason. She said also that Mrs. Hubbard had accused her of falsehood and resorting to a subterfuge in the matter.

Mrs. Hubbard detailed the trouble she had in getting Miss Susie to read the proper essay and said that she had resorted to a subterfuge in order to deceive her, by saying she would read the other while holding the objectionable one in her hand, thereby leading her to believe that she had agreed to be submissive. She did not use the word falsehood. She also admitted saying that some people in order to make themselves famous, would not hesitate to become infamous.

At the conclusion of the testimony, Mr. Owsley made a fiery speech in which he admitted that his client had been guilty of a crime, but said if he had been in his place he would have resorted to more severe means than he did.

Mr. Miller spoke very strongly in favor of holding Lasley for assault and battery, reviewed the testimony and said there was not one word of justification for the uncalled for, brutal and wanton assault, by a young athlete on a frail old man many years his senior. It was an outrage that should be punished to the extent of the law and he demanded that a jury be allowed to sit in judgment on the case.

Mr. Harding made an earnest effort to prove that his client had done no more than any father should have done and tried to show that the young lady had been most shamefully and outrageously treated. The shoving of Hubbard's finger in Lasley's face warranted him in striking him and he asked in fairness and justice that his client be discharged.

Mr. Paxton closed the prosecution in a very forcible speech. He nixed no words with reference to the assault, which he characterized as the most disgraceful one in the history of Stanford. It was premeditated and carefully arranged to take the old gentleman at a disadvantage and if such brutal assaults were permitted to go free of punishment there need be no judicial investigations. He demanded that the accused be held for assault and battery, but it was like talking to a saw horse, the judge had made up his mind that the case was nothing more than a breach of the peace and held Lasley for trial on that charge to the 15th. His decision is universally condemned and with his preconceived ideas of the case it is strange that he would sit in judgment on it. Certainly there were sufficient grounds to warrant Lasley's being held for assault and battery, as every lawyer in the court house agreed, but his attorneys.

The community is very much stirred up over the matter, for they know Prof. Hubbard to be a law-abiding man, peaceable and unobtrusive. Squire George P. Bright, who has known him for 33 years, says he never knew aught but good of him and the professor says he never had a personal difficulty before. Our people, with but few exceptions sympathize with him and characterize the assault with the most unqualified condemnation. An indignation meeting was talked of but that would do no good further than to let the outside world know how such offenses and their punishment are regarded in our law-loving town.

The whole business, assault and result of trial, is a disgrace to the community.

MATRIMONIAL MATTERS.

—Joseph J. Lawson and Miss May J. Coleman were married at the bride's grand-father's, Skelton Coleman, Wednesday.

—E. J. Jones, a widower of 51, and Miss Isaac Sweet, a maiden of 46 summers, were united heart and hand at the bride's mother's, near Moreland, Wednesday.

—The hour of the marriage of Mr. Monte Fox to Miss Annie Baughman was inadvertently omitted from the notice in last issue. It is 8 o'clock on the evening of the 14th, at the Christian church. Rev. W. E. Ellis will officiate, and after the knot is tied the couple, with their attendants and relatives, will repair to the home of the bride, where a reception will be given.

—Judge W. R. Carson received yesterday a telegram from his son, Mr. Jas. T. Carson, stating that he and Miss Sue Snyder, the very lovely daughter of Mr. G. B. Snyder, of Louisville, were quietly married on the evening before. It was not a surprise to Mr. Carson's friends hereabout, as the love affair had been one of long standing and it had been generally conceded that they would marry sooner or later. Mr. Carson first met his bride at Rock Castle Springs about six years ago and it was a genuine case of love at first sight. It was the writer's pleasure to be with them when rapid's dart got in its work and it can be truly stated that a couple better suited could not have had the good fortune to meet. The bride is a stately brunette, lovely of disposition, a handsome woman and one thoroughly accomplished. She will, we dare say, make a helpmeet that Mr. Carson will always feel proud of and a wife that he will love the more as the days go by. Mr. Carson is a splendid young business man, capable and popular. He has a remunerative position with Lowman's Sons & Co., of Cincinnati, and probably sells as many goods as any man on the road. Mr. and Mrs. Carson left at once for Chicago, where they will remain awhile; from there they will go to several Eastern cities and as soon as their bridal tour is ended will make a visit to their relatives and friends here. The Interior Journal joins their many friends in wishing them a life of happiness and each at tache, from the editor down to the ill-used devil, will look with interest on the future of the happy young couple.

SELECTIONS

THE NEW UMBRELLA.

It Has a Gutter and Drain to Carry Off
the Water.

"The chappies of New York used to roll up their trousers when the cable announced that it was raining in London, but they can soon discard their custom," said John M. Hingley, of New York. "I saw something on Broadway the other day that induced this belief. The rain was coming down in torrents, and the flood of humanity always surging on that street night and day had been driven into doorways and under awnings for protection. For a half hour not a pedestrian was seen on the street.

"My attention was attracted by yells and I looked out a big plate glass window to see what was causing the excitement. My curiosity was soon satisfied.
In the middle of Broadway one of the slim necked and consumptive legged chappies was striding along under a curious looking umbrella, as if not a drop of rain was falling. I noticed that the umbrella had an unusually long handle, with a prodigious hook on the end that almost scraped the ground as the dude proudly cantered along. Through this hook a stream of water was gushing out and left a rivulet in the dude's wake.

"The chappie was so overwhelmed by the flattering remarks that he was showered upon him by the rain frightened pedestrians, who had lost confidence in their umbrellas and had taken refuge in the stores, that he condescended to step into the room where I was standing.

This gave me an opportunity to examine his funny looking umbrella. I found that it was so constructed as to curl up around the rim when opened, forming a complete gutter, like those around the eaves of houses. This gutter, of course, caught the rain as it ran down the mansard roof of the umbrella, and kept it from dripping down to the ground and splashing the chappie's ice cream trow-
ers. By a slight tilt of the umbrella the water thus caught was thrown to a common center, which was the entrance to the sewer that runs down through the umbrella's handle and out to the ground.

"There, you see, is the riddance of the umbrella's defect as a protection from rain. The dude proudly told me that it was the latest thing in 'Lummum' that all the 'fellahs' over there were using them; that he had just come from 'Lum-mun,' and had brought the umbrella over in the ship with him. He hadn't said anything to the chappies about it, because he wanted to knock 'em all out by being the first seen on Broadway with the newest English invention. He knew they would all go wild about it and he was glad of it. Well, when I get back to New York I don't expect to see any other kind of umbrella carried by the chappies."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Devil Fish with 2,500 Suckers.
Mr. Edwards, the taxidermist, has just received a large octopus, or devil fish, which was captured off Old Town by some fishermen. The creature weighed over sixty pounds and had arms three feet eight inches in length.
On each of its eight tentacles or arms
there were 300 suckers, making a grand total of 2,500. The octopus had attached itself to a fish hooked on a trawl and was drawn up with it. The same firm has also received a young albino deer, a buck, shot on Windy Island. It has two-pronged horns and is supposed to be about two years old.

The natural color for a fawn is brown,
with white spots, but the color of this one is white, with brown spots. A doe was shot on the island some time ago,
so that it is thought there must be albino blood in the deer on the island.
The doe was secured by Mr. Edwards some time ago, and now the pair are to be exhibited in some of the shop windows down town. The deerkins are comparatively easy to preserve, but no better means of preserving the devil fish has been found as yet than keeping them in alcohol. This is on account of their having no bones, and because of their shrinking and shriveling, as most forms of deep water marine life do.— Tacoma Ledger.

The Bills Still on Top.

The gatemen at the elevated railroad stations watch the receptacles for Grant monument fund donations with much interest. The glass jars on some of the down town stations have filled rapidly during the last week. The gatemen at the Park place up town station noted one curious fact. When there was but a single layer of coins on the bottom of the jar two one dollar bills, loosely folded, were dropped through the slot.
The jar is now nearly one-third full of coin, and those two bills are still on top.
As the nickels, dimes and quarters have fallen into the jar they have worked their way under the loosely folded paper money instead of packing it down and covering it up, as the watchful gatemen think ought to have been the case.—New York Times.

Making Phosphorus by Electricity.
The application of electricity to the manufacture of phosphorus is expected to revolutionize the industry. The phosphorus is extracted from the usual materials by being intensely heated with carbon in an electric furnace. It is thus vaporized and is afterward collected in copper condensers. The latest pattern of furnace produces daily about 150 pounds of very poor phosphorus, with a loss of about 14 per cent. of total quantity of the raw material.

The effect of this new development will be that a single building which has been erected for the purpose in England will soon be turning out half as much as the world's present consumption.—New York Telegram.

The Family Man's Supreme Test.
There is no middle course for the

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

MANY plants for the flower garden may be propagated by cuttings, among them verbena, coleus, petunias, roses, heliotropes and chrysanthemums.

The tools on the farm should all be sharpened now. No good workman uses dull tools, and the farmer is no exception, as he cannot afford to lose time at this season of the year.

Rust on celery is caused by blanching with earth during warm weather.
Boards or paper should be used until in the fall. Sow the celery seed in hot beds, and plant out to the open ground after frost is over. The ground should be very rich.

Plow the corn land, and work it over fine with the harrow. It may save time to lay off the rows and plow after planting, but it lessens the yield. Have the rows perfectly straight, the soil fine and much labor will be saved later in the season.

On the smooth surface of a macadam road one horse will haul twice the load that the same horse could on the best dirt road, and from five to ten times as much as can be hauled by a single horse when the dirt road is covered with soft mud and ruts.

No animal should be compelled to drink water that is unfit for human beings, and especially the cow which gives milk, as she simply hands to her owner that which he gives her in the shape of "raw material" from which to manufacture milk.

Beans ought to prove a profitable crop. If the soil is run down in fertility, a half ton of a good superphosphate would be needed to give a good crop, one-fourth in drill and the rest broadcast. Less may answer, according to condition of soil.—Maine Farmer.

EXPERIMENTS made for the purpose show that the copper sulphate does not injure the soil when it is used for spraying, as plants grew vigorously in a soil containing one per cent. of copper sulphate in solution, the experiments being made on small plots.
